IMPRESSIVE HOME: Stanklyn House was built in what was considered to be the most idyllic position.

House with history

ONE of north Worcestershire's most impressive country holdings, The Stanklyn House Estate in Stanklyn Lane, Stone, near Kidderminster, is for sale.

The main house is a large property of about 4,600 sq ft with views over its own lake and woodlands, which in all extend to approximately 22 acres.

Stanklyn House was completed in about 1929 by the Hill family, who at that time owned all the land in the area. They resided at Stone Manor, which is now Stone Manor Hotel. The house was built in what they considered to be the most idyllic position.

The four-bedroom, three-reception room house has great architectural merit and was designed to have the best views of the natural lake and its surrounding woodland. The internal accommodation has been fitted, finished and reconditioned to an exceptional level.

Further additions include a beautifully integrated kitchen providing luxury facilities for a modern day lifestyle. There is an adjoining self-contained cottage for additional accommodation.

The estate is being sold in two lots with lot two being gently sloping pastureland extending to approximately eight acres to the east of the drive.

It could readily be utilised for equestrian purposes.
